CARDINAL

The emblem of NHS is a flaming torch which symbolizes the light for knowledge. On the emblem the letters CSLS stand for the qualities of character, scholarship, leadership, and service. The national colors are white for citizenship, gold for scholarship, purple for leadership, and red for service.

THE NATIONAL

An important decision that brings individual honor to a student is to be chosen to join the National Honor Society. Not only must one rank high scholastically but he is judged on his leadership qualities, his citizenship, and his service to the school. Twenty-one students received the honor of being chosen for membership this year.

The Honor Society sponsors the autographing party which is the most important school event. The Honor Society participated in two civic projects which were the Cerebral Palsy and the Heart Fund drives.

DECISIONS ARE OUR LIFE

Decisions dominate our lives, particularly in high school, perhaps more than any other period in our life. Deciding courses of study, classes, clubs to join, picking and choosing new friends. Some decisions find an outlet in frustrations, exams, extra-curricular activities. Upon these decisions rest our expectations, failures, and accomplishments. Some decisions design our lives, others shade them, and others alter the course. Decisions are time-consuming; they may not be momentous but they make high school an unforgettable and never fully realized experience. School life thrives on decisions.

An important decision of this year was to formulate a student council. Rules of eligibility were set up and the following elected to the student council: Seniors: David Bowman, Steven Hopper, Judy Wood; Juniors: Allen Capps, Charolotte Judd, Emily McMillian; Sophomores; Joyce Britton, Tim Stipp, Greg Spittler; Freshmen: Paulette Hopkins, Rita Carter.

An important decision was to conduct a six-week summer school. Teachers were Miss Barley, Mrs. Berry, Mrs. Barratt, Mrs. Wells third and fourth grade.

Decisions made by our faculty and administrators have an impact on the students with whom they come in contact. Facts and theories are presented to develop decisive powers of every student. Custodians, cafeteria workers, clerical assistants, bus drivers - careful workers who maintain clean, healthful, efficient surroundings and transport all carefully and safely.

Although not familiar to most students, the Board of Education is faced with many important decisions. Into their capable hands falls the responsibility of creating and carrying out school policies. Keéping the school provided with the necessary equipment and helping the school to run smoothly.

As Mr. Smith is involved in the working of our school system, so is his secretary, Jackie Camerer involved in the hundred and one fittle things that must be done. Jackie is also secretary to the Board of Education. One who saves both of them steps is Mrs. Smith who is always there when needed.

American History, Contemporary Issues, World History, and Citizenship combine to allow the fertile minds of GHS to interpret and to understand world situations. Their decisions made through understanding will help to lead to peace, for an understanding world is a peaceful world.

In Contemporary Issues students are made aware of current happenings and are given an understanding of why we have our American Problems.

Miss Hudson administers the California Test to Juniors.

Mr. White says, "Lets have your assignments now."

Mr. White pauses for a question from Peggy.

MISS HUDSON
English II Contemporary Issues American History

"Exactly what is our domestic political situation?" This is a basic question discussed by this class. To give students the knowledge of our American History and to help them relate the past to our present is the main goal of the course in American History.

In Health, Mr. White is interested in accomplishing three things:

1. Learn the proper diet and the value of exercise.
2. Learn the value of medical and dental checkups.
3. Learn at least a basic knowledge of first aid.

The objective of the course in psychology is to help the students develop insights that will prove valuable to them both now and in the future. To help them understand themselves and, by doing so, help them to mold a better personality.

SCIENCE BUILDS

"BASIC UNDERSTANDING"

MR. EPPERLY General Science Biology Physical Science

In today's world, where rockets soar and micro-organisms thrive in a biological atmosphere, the need for more study in science is a vital aspect of any school curriculum.

Richard agrees with Mr. Epperly while Wayne and R. L. check the information.

Charlotte and Debby are amazed!!!

Mr. Epperly helps Francis, Billy and Melvin look for materials to use in their entry for the Spring Valley Conference Science Fair at GHS March 2 and 3.

Math courses offered at GHS take students step by step through the maze of mathematics. They start with the easier course where they obtain the fundamental principle of math, gradually proceeding to the more complex theories found in other sources.

Algebra I offers the first introduction to the concept of the unknown factor commonly known as " $x$ ".

Geometry emphasizes reasons which allow the Algebea students to employ certain techniques. Formal proofs are required to explain the validity of mathematical principles utilized in algebra.

After learning the algebraic rules of the method and the geometric reasons which make these rules applicable, students progress to the deeper study of math found in Algebra II and Trigonometry. Students will discover instruction in logarithms will profit them in chemistry.
It is so easy when Mr. Smith explains to Allan

Lynn works a problem in algebra under the watchful eye of Mr. Cook.

MATH EMPHASIZES METHODS AND REASONS

Mr. Smith uses the new Thermo-Fax machine to make a copy of a form to be filled out - maybe title I? This machine is a great help to all teachers in making copies and preparing tests.

As Mr. Cook prepares to explain a problem in Geometry, the class listens intently.

Mr. Cook is never to busy to help Benny.

MISS JENNINGS Vocational Home Economics

HERE DECISIONS ARE MADE FOR THE FUTURE

Vocational Home Economics offers courses from the freshman to the senior year. It develops values in personal living and in family life by affording abundant activities and book study to help the students make decisions and learn skills in the areas of clothing, foods, child care, and home nursing.

The courses emphasize planning the use of money, being a better buyer, improving personal appearance, and observing social courtesies for everyday living.

The girls are encouraged to find satisfactions from the values that good work contributes to happy home living.

Miss Jennings looks on as Mrs. Hawkins is served at the Open House. Miss Jennings very graciously plans teas and hospitality for many groups.

Miss Jennings examines the label on the material she plans to use on this chair in teaching her Interior Decorating Class on how to reupholster furniture.

One of those rare times - Mr. Hawkins at his desk

Vocational Agriculture strives to develop competent, aggressive agricultural leadership. It aims to teach students how to develop farming programs and to improve the home and its surroundings. Skills in shop are attained with emphasis on metal and woodworking and electricity. It aims to develop character, train for useful citizenship, improve scholarship and foster patriotism.

This is the shop in the Ag Building. One can see how efficiently it is equipped - an ideal place for any boy to learn the use of tools.

MR. HAWKINS Vocational Agriculture

Mr. Hawkins uses the overhead projector to explain to the boys the different cuts of a beef. The projector is a new piece of equipment in GHS which is a great aid to both teachers and students.

The main objective of Bookkeeping is to give the students a better understanding of keeping records, which has become a vital part of our every-day living. Business activities touch the living of everyone who earns an income and is therefore responsible for keeping records that can be checked by income tax authorities. I strive to get across to each student the importance of reaching this goal of keeping a good sound readable set of books.

The business employee is judged by the way he speaks, by the way he spells, by the way he writes, by the way he punctuated - in short by the way he handles his language. Often he demonstrates his fitness for a good position by the way he communicates. So, the goal of this class is a thorough mastery of the tools of communication.

Law governs the day-to-day activities of people more than most of us realize. Every effort is made in this course to give legal meaning to the common place activities as well as to those that arise less frequently. In this way it is hoped that students will develop habits of thinking of the legal implications of each act. Stress is place not only on one's legal rights and benefits but also on his legal duties, obligations, and liabilities.

STUDENTS

Here in the Commerce Building many phases of learning take place. Not only in their room for the Typing II class pictured here, but many students work at the tables studying, building speed by touch on the $10-\mathrm{Key}$ Adding Machine, using the mimeoscope, the electric typewriters, and even running off tests on the spirit duplicator or pages of the newspapers on the mimeograph. Here Mr. Goade teaches Business English. Mrs. Morris has classes in Shorthand, Typing I and II, and Secretarial Practice. It is the press room for the CARDINAL SPIRIT, the school newspaper. Here many hours of hard work go into each issue, but many skills are learned in the process. During January and February - the staff of THE 1967 CARDINAL, the school yearbook - put in many long hours to meet the deadline of March 1. From this type of work, students become more accurate, more efficient, better proofreaders and more capale of holding down a good job.

In business classes the aim is to acquaint students with the general scope of their duties in the business world, to provide them with skills and experiences, to provide opportunity for the practice of the many duties to develop efficient work habits, and to in the choosing of a career.

Mrs. Morris adds variety to dictation by using tapes and records to build speed. Here Kathie and Susan take the weekly letter from tape.

To these GHS band members, the year has held many wonderful moments to be cherished in the years to come. In football season there was the excitement of giving a halftime show. When Christmas rolled around there was the grandeur of marching in the Pierce City, Monett, Joplin, and Neosho parades. The hard practice of the band clinic at Mc Donald County proved fruitful in the way of experience and learning. On March 31, there was the restless and nervous feeling that accompanies contests as students compete for high honors. It has been a year of listening, working, and discovering to this band of GHS; decisions have been the key to every acomplishment.

THE CARDINAL IS DECISIONS

Editor, Wayne Brower, and his inexperienced staff, set out to complete the 1967 CARDINAL. The first step in planning a yearbook is to examine other yearbooks for ideas and discuss plans. The editor bears the responsibility of supervising and approving work that is to go into the book.

Each section is assigned an editor to plan the layouts and to make the decision as to which pictures are to be taken. These people are held responsible for the completion of certain pages of the yearbook. Many hours of intense work are consumed in readying it for publication.

Since pictorial records are important, the photographers play a very big part in planning a yearbook.

Debbie, Rhea, R. L., Benny, and Donnie
We are also indebted to Mr. Hawkins for many pictures.

The Stewards aid in the taking of pictures.
Mr. Duckwall takes the school pictures.

All individual pictures come on a roll. These must be cut on the paper cutter, stamped, and identified. Jeanie and Rosalie cut the pictures as Sandy stamps them and Kathy puts them in the envelopes.

THE CARDINAL STAFF STRIVES

FOR VARIETY

and Mary Lou in chairs exchanging ideas.

Sales are important to a yearbook. Business Manager, Judy Wood, discusses problems with some of the Sales Staff. Judy gives Allan, treasurer, money received from sales. Allan then gives the money to Jackie for deposit. Mr. Goade has been a great help in promoting sales of the yearbook.

Wayne checks layouts to see that pictures fit and are attractively arranged so that they tell a story. Mary Lou, Cathy, Beth, Debbie, and Starloyce question a picture.

A yearbook is not only a picture record of events, but is also enjoyed.

THE CARDINAL SPIRIT

NEWSPAPER STAFF WORKS, LEARNS, CREATES

Shari Cook, Editor of THE CARDINAL SPIRIT, discusses next months issue with Mary Lou Renfro, Editorial Editor, and Beth Burnett, Exchange Editor.

Jeanie, Kathy, Rosalie, and Sandy, Grade Editors, spend much time gathering news from teachers. After the news is received, rough drafts must be typed and the information placed properly on the pages. (Faye Martin, not pictured, is also assigned to this section.

Cossette, Viki, Patsy, Claudia, and Billie agree that transferring information from rough drafts to stencils is very easy if a rough draft has been properly planned.

A school newspaper is the art of using one's talent to the fullest extent. It not only keeps students up-to-date on happenings, but fills the staff with a satisfaction of accomplishment that they have done something really worthwhile by working and creating with their abilities. True, there are moments of anxiety in wondering if it will go out on time, distress in trying to get news compiled, and weariness in working long hours, but it all adds up to learning. You learn to write interesting articles, be patient, diligent, concise, and neat. A person's ability to work with others broadens and she learns to respect the desires and decisions of fellow workers.

THE CARDINAL SPIRIT, published monthly by the Secretarial Practice class, provides basic training in typing stencils, experience in mimeoscope work, and develops skill in using the mimeograph for girls interested in secretarial work. At the end of the school year, a Senior paper is published in which the history and individual information is given about the senior class.

During the entire year, many decisions must me made concerning the publication of these papers. Sometimes we may wish we had done better, but in the end, every decision was a good one for it enabled each member of the staff to learn something more than what they already knew.

The mimeograph machine turns out the product of hours of hard work. Susan, Gay, Debbie, Starloyce, Linda, and Cheryl observe the final results.
Sandy, Cathy, Anita, and Connie use the mimeoscope to add variety to their pages.
Mimeoscope work on every page is essential in order to print an interesting newspaper.

Our 1967 Homecoming took place "Under Spanish Skies." The five anxious candidates and their escorts in order of their presentation: Mary Lou Renfro and Harold Bailey, Susan Younger and Loy McInturff, Charolotte Judd and Allan Capps, Juanita Cargile and Loyd Bailey, Joyce Britton and Danny Friend. The Candidates then proceeded over the bridge in the garden and then passed through the honor guard formed by the cheerleaders: Beth, Betsy, Pam, and Susan. Mr. Hunter, pep club sponsor, announced this year's Queen - Juanita Cargile. Kathie Turner presented her with the crown and Loyd bestowed the royal kiss on her. Donna Wyrick gave her a bouquet of red and white carnations. Last year's Queen, Linda Patterson, presented her with a red velvet, cloak to be passed on from one queen to the next in the years to come. Paulette Hopkins and Irene Travis were usheretts. Sharon and Darrin Brewer were the Queen's attendants.

Eagerly awaiting the announcement of the Homecoming Queen.

Being a cheerleader is an honor, yes, but like most honors, one must work for it. Cheerleading is obtained and secured through hard work.

From daily practice sessions to planning and decorating for pep assemblies, the Basketball Homecoming, a cheerleader must exert co-operativeness and set a good example at all times. Cheering at all basketball and football games is only a part of the activity, for a cheerleader is expected to maintain good scholarship as well.

Through their enthusiasm, GHS cheerleaders exhibit the will to spur the team to victory.

GIRLS PREPARE FOR HOMEMAKING ROLE

Miss Jennings and Maxine entertain the children at the "Play School," a project of the Sophomore Home Ec. girls.

Tonia Moffett and Erma Hill give a demonstration to show the proper care for hair.

The freshmen are formally welcomed into F.H.A. in the Initiation Ceremony.

F.H.A.

When a girl decides to join Future Homemakers of America, she belongs to an organization giving her national, state, regional, and local membership.

As an active member, she joins a half million girls across the country who are working toward common objectives. By their decisions, they are trying to achieve purposeful goals in creating not only homes, with love, guidance, and understanding; but also to attain these conditions in their communities, their states, and their nation. The home economics courses the girls study can encourage youth to reach these goals through countless job training and career choices.

During our 21st anniversary year, the Granby F.H.A. members are making decisions for the future with hope as they move toward new horizons.

The Juniors and Seniors spend many hours in research and study for their classes. This year they have studied Creative Sewing and Interior Decorating.

FRESHMAN OFFICERS ASSUME RESPONSIBILITIES

Freshmen soon realize they are in a new world of new opportunities of study and broader realms of activities. Decisions must be made - a freshman must decide what he wants to gain from high school - what courses will enable him to reach his goal. Freshmen may start vocational training by choosing Home Economics and Agriculture.

In Agriculture, Danny, Troy, and Ricky receive basic training in working with wood.

Decisions are increasingly evident in a sophomore's world. It is a year of firsts - they become eligible for membership in the National Honor Society - they may take Typewriting and Art. It is a year of growth and development. It is a time of beginning and learning and accepting and planning for the future. The confidence now displayed by these students is a self assurance that comes only with growth, knowledge, and accomplishment.

JUNIOR OFFICERS FACE A DEMANDING YEAR

Expectations and decisions mingle to make the junior year an unforgettable experience for those who live it. More is demanded of them in every facet of their lives at GHS - from harder assignments in the classroom, to planning the Junior-Senior Prom. The problems are many, and choices seem difficult. Their junior year will leave these students with one major advantage - they are ready to be Seniors.

AFTER YEARS TOGETHER, SENIORS PART

This senior class feels that their class is the best. When we look back at all the years, some memories are good and some are sad. Time and time again, we say we can't wait until we are on our own.

Life to a senior is studying, laughing, and enjoying the good things. In working and living with fellow students, seniors find rewards in the small things of life - a smile, a whisper, a glance. Seniors must leave their coddled, protected life and face the world. As seniors we offer the world, youth the life blood of America. We meet the challenge!

GRADUATION CULMINATES THESE DECISIONS

The first step toward graduation is choosing class rings. Mr. Kemper displays the ring to Cathy, Starloyce, Beth, Debbie, and Mr. Goade. The next decision is choosing announcements. Anita, Wayne, and Sharon examine the announcement chosen. When we see diplomas on Mr. Smith's desk, we realize graduation is near. The moment the effect takes hold is when Mr. Smith hands you your diploma. Now you are on your own, facing the world by yourself.

"A Man Called Peter" was the play given by the senior class. These seniors are shown trying out for parts in the play which was directed by Mr. James Goade. The play, written by Catherine Marshall, is the story of Peter Marshall, an outstanding minister who won his way into the hearts of many people. It is a different type play than what has usually been given, and was well received.

Wayne, Betsy, Loy, David, Doug, and Sharon are senior speech students who earned one ratings at the district speech contest held at Pierce City.

As a result of the Ohio Psychological Tests, the Board of Curators of the University of Missouri issues certificates of recognition to students whose test scores are in the top twenty per cent. These students of GHS received the top scores: Shari, Judy, Robert, Sharon, John, Betsy, Loy, Marilyn, Doug, Gay, David, Debbie, Richard, Mr. Woodrum.

THE 1967 CARDINAL STAFF

They said it couldn't be done, but we fooled them! Here we are and here is the yearbook - all finished! The Highlander takes careful planning, a lot of hard-work, and a few disagreements too. We're all friends again and ready to take our well-earned vacation.

School is not only an institution for learning but it is a testing ground. Students realize this through decisions - decisions concerning morals, character, interests, abilities. Prejudices, our narrowmindedness, human shortcomings are wide-spread but students must judge for themselves.

Therefore, a record of a student must be a BOOK of Decisions.
