

My Family Tree

Two Generations of Direct Ancestors

This form is provided by the Genealogy Friends of the Library to help others research their family trees. Please complete as much information as possible. The best source of information is older relatives.

Your direct ancestors are the "trunk" of your family tree. And it starts with information about you, your parents and grandparents. You will want to add your children, siblings, uncles, aunts and cousins to your tree later, but we highly recommend that you focus on direct ancestors first. If you are married, especially if you have children, your spouse should complete one of these forms as well.

Genealogy Friends of the Library will be offering free personal assistance on the first Saturday of every month. If you or your direct ancestors lived in this area, we have a great collection of local history that is not available on-line, including microfilm of area newspapers, obituaries, family histories, tax lists, land records, Bible records and military history. We also have information from states that many of our earliest settlers came from.

Genealogy Friends of the Library also makes a large contribution each year for the library's subscription to Ancestry.com. Two computers in the Jack and Rita Wood Genealogy and Local History Room are reserved for genealogy use. Ancestry.com can be accessed from any computer in the library.
